KEY DEFINITIONS

Before we review the steps in the reasonable accommodation process, let's define some key terms used throughout this toolkit.

Reasonable Accommodation

A reasonable accommodation is a change, exception or adjustment to a rule, policy, practice or service that allows a person with a disability to use and enjoy housing, including public and common use areas. Common examples of reasonable accommodations are:

- Providing rental forms in large print
- Providing a reserved accessible parking space near a dwelling
- allowing a service animal in a "no pets" building

Reasonable Modification

A reasonable modification is a structural change made to a living space or to a common area of a community, which is necessary to enable the resident with a disability to have full use of and enjoyment of the housing. Common examples of reasonable modifications are:

- Installing grab bars in a bathroom
- adding a ramp and handrails to make a main entrance accessible
- Altering a walkway to provide access to a public or common use area

For the purposes of this toolkit, we will use the term "reasonable accommodation" to refer to both accommodations and modifications.

If you are a housing choice voucher holder and do not live at a Homes for Good property, please contact your landlord directly to request modifications to your unit.

Disability

Under Fair Housing laws, a disability is defined as a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activity, a record of having such an impairment, or being regarded as having such an impairment.

Major Life Activity

A major life activity is a function that is important to most people's daily lives. This can include but is not limited to caring for oneself, performing manual tasks, seeing, hearing, eating, sleeping, walking, lifting, bending speaking breathing, learning, reading, concentrating, thinking, communicating and working.

This also includes major bodily functions such as immune system, normal cell growth, digestive, bowel, bladder, neurological, brain, respiratory, circulatory, endocrine and reproductive functions.

Healthcare Provider or Qualified Professional

If a disability and/or related need are not readily apparent or obvious, Homes for Good may require information from a healthcare provider or qualified professional. This information is typically provided by a doctor or other medical professional. However, a qualified professional such as a peer support advocate, non-medical service agency or a reliable third party who is in a position to know about an individual's disability may also provide verification of a disability and related need.

The documentation that can be requested is a letter of verification from a doctor or other medical professional, or other qualified third party who, in their professional capacity, has knowledge about the person's disability and the need for reasonable accommodation. For more information, see the joint HUD and Dept. of Justice guidance memo on reasonable accommodations online at www.usdoj.gov/crt/housing/joint_statement_ra_5-17-04.pdf.

STEP 1

Complete Section 1 of the Reasonable Accommodation Request Form

Be sure to:

- Write neatly or type using the digital version of the form
- Describe the livability issue(s) and health condition that is being impacted.
- Sign the form giving Homes for Good permission to contact your healthcare provider or qualified professional if necessary to process your request

STEP 2

Read Section 2 of the Reasonable Accommodation Request Form - Definition of Disability

HUD defines a disability as:

- A physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of a person's major life activities
- A record of having such an impairment, or
- Being regarded as having such an impairment

This includes both physical and mental impairments including physiological and psychological disorders and conditions.

STEP 3

Have your Healthcare Provider or Qualified Professional complete Section 3 of the Reasonable Accommodation Request Form

Your healthcare provider or qualified professional should complete this section. They need to:

- Confirm that a disability related need exists
- Provide the estimated duration of the disability related need
- Provide information about which major life activities are impacted by your impairment

STEP 3

- Describe how moving without 30 days notice, or before the required twelve (12) months in the home will assist you with the limitation posed by a disability, removing barriers to housing and allowing you to fully access and utilize the program
- Provide alternative accommodations that could potentially meet the disability related need if the original request cannot be granted
- Provide their contact information
- Sign and date the form

Note: While a letter from your healthcare provider or qualified professional may be acceptable, to ensure quick and efficient processing of your request, we recommend using our form, as it includes the necessary information we need to make a determination.

STEP 3

If your disability is known or obvious, and if the need for the requested accommodation is also readily apparent or known, Homes for Good will not require verification from your healthcare provider or qualified professional.

An applicant with an obvious mobility impairment asks for an assigned parking space near the entrance to the building. The disability and the related need are both readily apparent so additional information is not required.

If your disability is known or obvious, but the need for accommodation is not readily apparent or known, we will request only information that is necessary to evaluate the disability related need for accommodation.

A resident who uses a wheelchair requests to keep an assistance dog in their unit despite a "not pets" policy. The disability is apparent, but the need for an assistance animal is not, so we will ask for more information including a statement from a healthcare provider or qualified professional.

STEP 3

If your disability is not known or obvious, we will request information from your healthcare provider or qualified professional to confirm a disability related need exists, and to confirm that the requested accommodation meets this need.

An applicant with a mental health disorder requests to receive digital communications from Homes for Good instead of letters sent via USPS. Since the disability and related need are not apparent, we will ask for more information including a statement from a healthcare provider or qualified professional.

STEP 5

Respond to Information Requests

Sometimes we may need more information about your request and your needs. If this happens, we will let you know what information we need.

You can help speed up the process by:

Completing the entire request form, being sure to sign Section 1

Communicating with the ADA Coordinator.

They can help you complete the form if you have questions or need assistance

Making sure your healthcare provider or qualified professional responds to requests for more information in a timely manner

STEP 5

Respond to Information Requests

If we ask for more information and we do not hear from you within 120 days, we will close your case.

If this happens, we will send you a notice with contact information for the ADA Coordinator with instructions on how to reopen your request.

STEP 6

Interactive Discussion

We may need to talk to you and/or your health care provider/qualified professional about your specific needs, the suggested accommodation and other options that could meet your disability related need.

STEP 7

Decision

Once we have the information we need, we will make a decision. Our goal is to work with you to provide accommodations that eliminate barriers to housing so you can fully utilize our programs.

Most of our reasonable accommodation requests are approved. However, we may deny your request if:

The request is not made by or on behalf of a person with a disability, or if there is no disability-related need for the accommodation

Providing the accommodation would impose an undue financial or administrative burden

Providing the accommodation would fundamentally change the nature of the program

STEP 7

Decision

We recognize that you are most familiar with your disability and are in the best position to determine what type of accommodation will be effective to meet a disability related need.

If we deny a request for accommodation, we will discuss other options with you that could meet your disability related need without a fundamental change to our operations and without imposing an undue financial or administrative burden.
